ALASKA STRUCK ON BLUNT'S REEF-WENT DOWN IN BRIEF TIME

Wireless Reports Indicate All Passengers Were Taken Off In Life Boats--Other Vessels Have Gone To Relief of Alaska.

(By The Associated Press)

BULLETIN

EUREKA, Calif., Aug. 6.—All passengers aboard the Steamer Alaska, wrecked on Blunt's Reef, have been taken off in the ship's boats, according to a wireless message received by the Naval Wireless Station at Table Bluff, near here.

The Steamer Anxox reported to the wireless station that it was five miles from the scene of the wreck and was proceeding to the Alaska's assistance. All the Alaska's boats were reported lowered.

Blunt's Reef is about four miles off shore. The weather is thick and foggy. The sea was comparatively calm.

BULLETIN

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 6.—A telegram from Seattle tonight said wireless operators there had picked up an S. O. S. from the passenger Steamer Alaska which had struck on Blunt's Reef near Eureka, California, shortly after 9 o'clock. The Alaska carried 131 passengers, of whom 123 were in the cabin and eight in the steerage.

BULLETIN

NORTH HEAD, Washn., Aug. 6.—An S. O. S. from the Steamer Alaska was received at the wireless station here at 9:08 P. M. The vessel was hard aground on Blunt's Reef.

A second call said the Alaska had struck the rocks hard and was listing heavily.

At 9:40 P. M., wireless messages from the Alaska said that all boats were being lowered. The ship, the wireless said, "was full of passengers" and urged that ships come to the assistance of the vessel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 6

—The Marconi Wireless Telegraph company of America received the following S. O. S. call from the Steamer Alaska at 9:18 o'clock tonight:

"Hit rocks at Blunt's Reef. On shore listing heavily."

Marconi operators got in communication with the Steamer Ernest H. Meyer, ninety miles north of Eureka, and asked it to go to the assistance of the Alaska.

Tank Steamer Caught Wireless NORTH HEAD, Washn., Aug. 6.—The wireless S. O. S. call of the Alaska ceased at 9:58, adding to the belief that she had gone down.

The tank Steamer El Segundo, 120 miles north of Blunt's Reef, wireless that she had caught the Alaska's S. O. S., but could not reach her before tomorrow.

The Steamer Wahkema, only five miles from the scene of the wreck, was wireless that she is on her way to the Alaska's aid.

Many Wrecks Off Blunt's Reef

San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 6.—Blunt's Reef on which the Steamer Alaska struck tonight is forty miles south of Eureka, California and 197 miles north of San Francisco.

Ship accidents were frequent at that point many years ago until a light ship was built in 1901. The only notable wreck since was the sinking about 15 years ago of the Steamer Columbia with a large loss of life.

The owners of the Alaska also owned the Columbia.

The Alaska of the line of the San Francisco and Portland Steamship company, left here last Friday with a heavy passenger list, this being her height of the summer tourist season. The vessel was only recently added to the line's fleet.

Blunt's Reef has been the scene of a number of disastrous ship wrecks. Fog has prevailed along the Washington, Oregon and Northern California coasts for two weeks past and several shipping casualties have occurred the most notable being the wreck of the Canadian government Steamer Canada Exporter off South Bend, Washington last week.

BILL REGULATING GRAIN EXCHANGES MORE FAVORABLE

Shike Out Proposal to Prohibit Private Telegraph and Telephone Lines

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Amendments to the Capper-Tincher bill to regulate future dealings in grain agreed upon today by the senate agriculture committee include a decision to strike out a committee proposal to prohibit privately owned or leased telegraph and telephone lines from connecting with cities in which grain exchanges are not located.

It was held that while aimed at "bucket shops," the provision would deprive producers of means for obtaining market reports to aid in disposing of their grain.

The committee proposal to give the federal trade commission access by order of the secretary of agriculture to reports made by exchanges also goes, but authority for the secretary to call for such reports and make them available to the attorney general will be insisted upon.

L. F. Gates, of the Chicago Board of Trade opposed the elimination of leased wire houses and told the committee that proposed federal trade commission examination would give the commission authority to explore the business of co-partnerships and firms not now subject to its jurisdiction. He also contended that provisions of the bill permitting co-operative market associations which become members of grain exchanges to rebate commissions would be a powerful lever to compel all dealers to join such association threatening monopolistic control by the producers.

NEW AGREEMENT ON IMMIGRATION TO BE ARRANGED

U. S. Officials and Ship Line Officers Will Meet Monday

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Francis midnight racing of immigrant-laden steamers into American harbors to land monthly quotas in the first minutes of the month of new months may be done away with Monday when ship line officers and immigration officials get together to formulate a new agreement.

Commissioner General Husband of the immigration bureau in announcing the conference today said he was willing to "wipe the slate clean," admit under bond the 400 or so August quota excess now in harbors and begin all over again if the companies would reach a binding agreement among themselves not to exceed quotas hereafter.

Due to such a race July 31, the Greek, Turkish and other small quotas for August were exceeded in the first two minutes of August first. One ship lost out because of a lighter crossing her bow.

She was a British steamer bringing a small part of the month's quota of Greeks and had refused. Commissioner Husband said to take others. A Greek ship with the whole month's quotas of Greeks left after the British vessel but won by two minutes in docking August 1, and would be permitted to land her entire cargo under existing rulings.

The conference next Monday is planned to devise ways and means of meeting this situation. Commissioner Husband said that companies that bring the majority of immigrants are adhering strictly to agreements among themselves. The difficulty is with smaller lines and comparatively small numbers of immigrants, he said.

Since June 30, probably not more than 400 aliens have arrived in excess of quotas but these have taken practically all the time of the bureau officials to handle, it was said.

KANSAS COAL REPORT CHARGES HUGE WASTES

Public Because of Unfortunate Practices Pay High Prices

(By The Associated Press)

TOPEKA, Kans., Aug. 6.—Coal deposits in Kansas are being dissipated and the public is paying the price of this dissipation thru excessive and unreasonable prices of coal according to an extended report issued tonight by Kansas court of industrial relations, following an exhaustive investigation of the coal mining industry of the state.

The findings were made public tonight after a check of the evidence at hearings held in the coal fields among the miners and miners in Topeka where retail dealers were questioned, and in Kansas City, Mo., where firms having selling agencies in Kansas were summoned.

It may be necessary, the court reports to create an agency for the sale, transportation and delivery of coal to the ultimate consumer.

Justice for Public

"The problem of the coal mining industry is to reduce the price of coal to a point where the consumer can be served at a reasonable price and in perfect justice to all concerned," the report says, but neither miner, operator or distributor has made an effort to bring about a solution of this problem.

The sense of the court's conclusion, Judge J. A. McDermott, who conducted most of the investigation in person said tonight it to make public the relationship existing between the various agencies in coal production and distribution so the public may take action thru its representatives for a solution of the problem.

"With the recent situation," the findings state, "the final result is the time-honored game of 'passing the buck.' Powerful organized group of inefficient workers with no expert qualifications in the main has gradually, year by year assumed control of the production of coal in the Kansas field both by securing the passage of favorable and meaningless laws and by iron clad contracts with their employers whereby they now draw excessive wages for their labor and practically dictate every detail of the operation of the coal mines."

"The mine owners, rather than meet the issues when they appear in detail have successively acquiesced until they are powerless to resist with out a cessation of operation and consequent loss, so that the operators passed this on to their selling agencies won by manipulation, take their profit in addition to the mine producers profit and pass it on to the retailers who simply add his margin and passes the whole burden on the public."

Violations of Laws.

"They are all contributing causes to the situation and some of them are no doubt not only violators of economic laws, but statutory as well."

"As to what should be done in the future will be the concern of the court, for it is quite apparent that the only way to remedy this chain of economic wrongs is to begin at the bottom and clean the house from cellar to garret. Among other things the foreign element among the miners should be Americanized."

PRESIDENT NOW ON RETURN TRIP TO WASHINGTON

Visits Soldiers' Sanatorium—Promises all Possible Aid

(By The Associated Press)

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 6.—President and Mrs. Harding left Portland at midnight tonight on the presidential yacht Mayflower for Washington. They are expected to arrive at the capital Tuesday noon.

"I am happy," said the president in his short speech at Westbrook, "to say to you how grateful we are for the cordial greeting we have received in Maine and New Hampshire."

"I have thought what a change has come about. You haven't gathered here to greet me personally and you scarcely noticed it. But you have come to me tonight because I am your spokesman. When a man is a candidate for office he is always seeking to come among you and make himself heard but when a man is in office the people want him to come among them and he ought to come among them and be heard and heard from them."

"That's as it should be, for this is a popular government and let me say to you that no president can do anything of which the American people did not approve."

"Let me tell you also that it is a difficult thing to conduct the government of the United States. We have just emerged from a cataclysmic world war. Things have been turned upside down. It is a time when America must keep her hat on straight, when America must be confident of herself, and I like to say in passing that I have more confidence in America tonight than I ever had before in all my life. I believe America has found her soul and has found the inspiration to become not only the first great republic on earth as we are, but to grow the mightiest power in the world, leading mankind to higher and higher levels."

"Knowing your sentiments, I have recently been able to ask the great nations of the earth to meet with us around the council table and ask each other why there should be any war. We are going to have that kind of a conference and I hope it will be my fortune before my term of office is done to be able to say that our America somehow appealed to the conscience of mankind and that in the awakening of that conscience we put aside conflict. That's a fine ideal for a president."

As the president finished, a band struck up the Star Spangled Banner and Mr. Harding called on the audience to sing with the music.

He and Mrs. Harding joined in the singing and the crowd gave them three cheers.

The stop at Westbrook was arranged at the request of Senator Hale of this state.

Thousands Greet President

Several thousand persons gathered to hear the president's speech, greeting the people of the state and reiterating his prediction that America would find it possible to assume the leadership for world peace at the coming disarmament conference.

Before he said goodbye this morning to the mountain lodge near Lancaster which has been his home for the past four days, Mr. Harding played a round of golf. The play today was the final match of a tournament for the championship of the party and altho Mr. Harding made a low score, the title went to Senator Hale.

During the stop at Oxford both Mr. and Mrs. Harding assured the disabled war veterans under treatment here that the government would do everything possible for their welfare. Both asked many questions about the needs of the patients most of whom are suffering from the effects of gas, and before leaving made a thorough inspection of the establishment.

RELATIVES CLAIM MAN WAS NOT SHOT

QUINCY, Ill., Aug. 6.—Relatives of Henry Goldenstein, who found dead in a Kansas City hotel July 7, cannot reconcile the statements of the Kansas City coroner and detectives there who claim Goldenstein shot himself in the mouth, with the post-mortem examination of local physicians. The latter positively state that Goldenstein was not shot in the mouth or anywhere else; that there were no bullet wounds, but that a blood clot was found on the brain, their contention being that he was struck over the head with a blunt instrument. They claim he had money and a diamond pin neither of which was found on the body. The relatives say that unless the state's attorney in Kansas City makes a thorough investigation they will appeal to the attorney general of Missouri.

CABINET OFFICERS FAVOR EMBARGO ON DYES AND CHEMICALS

Secretaries Weeks and Denby Say That Embargo is Necessary from National Defense Viewpoint—Provision Was Stricken Out of the Fordney Tariff Bill by the House

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Secretaries Weeks and Denby have come out in support of an embargo on dyes and chemicals and have urged restoration to the Fordney tariff bill of the embargo provisions, stricken out by the house.

The attitude of the two cabinet officers was made known today when Chairman Penrose of the senate finance committee made public letters from them to the committee.

The cabinet officers explained that they favored an embargo because of national defense needs.

"It is of great value to the navy," Mr. Denby wrote, "to encourage the development of chemical activities in the manufacture of all products connected with explosives and gases, especially those manufactures whose establishments can easily be diverted to the manufacture of war materials. The restoration of the embargo clause will be of material help and I will greatly appreciate assistance to this effect."

Embargo orders have been found necessary by England, Japan, France and Italy. Mr. Weeks said. He also declared that the chemical industry was vital to Germany in prolonging her efforts in the world war and expressed the opinion that high explosives and war gases would play a far more important part in future wars.

In the world war, he said, the United States had found it could mobilize, train and equip with clothing four million men far quicker than it could supply the arms and ammunition.

"So fully did Germany realize before and after the world war," he continued, "that predominance in organized chemical industry and particularly the dye industry meant the valuable measure of preparedness possible that she has united all her organic chemical industries into one great trust."

"The use of high explosives and war gases will unquestionably be far greater in any future struggle than in the world war. It is of the most vital importance to our preparedness that the dye industry be developed to the fullest possible extent in this country."

Tax Plans Proposed.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Majority members of the house ways and means committee expect to get down to the brass tacks of tax revision next week.

Chairman Fordney said today that the rewriting of levy provisions in the 1918 law probably would begin Monday and that unless an unexpected snag was encountered the new bill should be ready within ten days.

Leaders generally say house consideration will require only a few days.

With revision of the administrative features out of the way, the work now before the Republican committee is to determine the extent of the cuts possible and just where they are to be made.

The general belief seems to be that the committee bill will propose repeal of the excess profits tax.

As a substitute for the excess profits tax it is planned to increase the corporation income tax from the present ten per cent to fifteen per cent and also to repeal the $2,000 exemption allowed corporations under the existing law.

WORLD WAR VETERAN SWIMS TRAVERSE BAY

PETOSKEY, Mich., Aug. 6.—Raymond Edmunds of Detroit, negro world war veteran and formerly of the United States Life Saving Service, today swam across Little Traverse Bay from the Harbor Springs dock, a distance of more than five miles. The trip was made in a heavy sea covered with white caps. Because of the coldness of the water, all previous attempts to swim this distance have failed.

UTILITY RATE POLICY OUTLINED.
Chairman Smith of the Illinois Commerce Commission recently outlined the policy of the commission in a way to indicate a fair and rational course. He said:
"We do not want to try any of these cases in the newspapers. There has been reference made to the attitude of this commission on rates—relative to their reduction. We are letting the work of the commission speak for itself. We are going to base our judgment upon the facts."
"Those who come before the commission may expect to get our honest judgment. They must expect to present their cases with the best ability and all the evidence possible—both sides."

THE PROPOSED CHECK STAMP TAX.
One of the most irksome taxes proposed by Secretary Mellon is the stamp on checks. The use of stamps on all checks would mean a lot of inconvenience, to say nothing of the expense. Bankers in the smaller towns and cities will be especially opposed to this proposal. They will take this attitude not because of the expense to them, since the customer must pay for the stamps, but because of the inconvenience to customers and the likelihood of withdrawals.
When the war-time revenue measure was being framed the original draft included this stamp proposal. One of the bankers in this congressional district pointed out to Congressman Rainey the effect of the stamped check provision and in the resulting discussion it was eliminated from the pending bill.
Bankers in the larger cities have no special reason for opposing the check stamp, as they do not encourage small depositors or the use of checks in the payment of small accounts. In the smaller cities and towns the use of checks has been encouraged, with the result that practically all money is deposited in the banks and there is little hoarding.
With a stamp tax on checks there is the incentive to withhold from deposit, to put it "under the mattress" or "behind the clock" in order to have ready money available for the payment of expenses and thus to avoid the stamp tax.
Money in the banks instead of in private hoarding places is much safer and the bank and checking system is better for all parties concerned. The secretary of the treasury in his check stamp is suggesting a means of revenue which will be burdensome and distasteful to business men and people generally outside the big cities.

BRINGING IT HOME TO INDIVIDUAL.
To get the government departments to save $112,000,000 out of funds voted to them for the fiscal year, as Mr. Dawes has done, is another illustration of his peculiar fitness for his important post.
If the government had always been run on business principles, similar possibilities of retrenchment would have been discovered long ago by the department heads themselves. In the first place, there would have been a budget system to insure coordination. In the second place, each department would have been trying to demonstrate its efficiency by getting the best results for the least money, precisely like the various departments in a department store. There would have been emulation in saving among them, rather than emulation in spending.

That a nation, prosperous as this has been, has a bottomless purse is one of those unconscious fallacies which influence the actions even of those who are perfectly aware that they are fallacies. The government has been looked upon as able to do anything—to suspend the laws of economics among them. That the individual is part of the government, that he pays his share of every extravagance the government is drawn into, it has taken the pressure of unprecipitated heavy taxation to impress upon the general mind. Thus the demand for business-like administration of the national finances has reached a degree of insistence that officialdom cannot ignore. The people are in no mood to see money thrown about. They have had the consequences brought home to them in their tax bills.

TEN YEARS OF THE CHAUTAUQUA
Now that the Wild West Round-Up has been concluded, the Chautauqua will be the center of attraction for the next two weeks.
The chautauqua was organized ten years ago by the old Chamber of Commerce and has been a success from the standpoint of its programs, attendance and finances. It provides a season of wholesome recreation and vacation for thousands of our people. It has given Jacksonville much favorable advertising for it is known abroad as one of the best chautauquas.
Ten years successful operation has demonstrated the place of the assembly in our community life. Its promotion entails a great amount of work upon its officers and the expenditure of about ten thousand dollars annually. The programs have always been the best obtainable and that for the coming session with its bands and superb musical organizations, unusual array of orators and speakers and exceptional entertainment features is far and away the climax of chautauqua programs.
The chautauqua's income is entirely from the sale of admission tickets and tent rentals. It pays for everything which goes into it and does not solicit advertising or other assistance. The only way to help the chautauqua is to boost it and buy tickets. The season tickets are low-priced, the lowest in the country. No other ten-day chautauqua presenting such high-class attractions sells season or day tickets at such low prices, and most of the five-day circuit chautauquas charge more for season tickets.
Our chautauqua is not run for financial profit. Its management has always tried to present the best possible assembly at the lowest price, to develop the community spirit and to up-build the moral and material interests of Jacksonville and the surrounding territory.

WILL AID EX-SERVICE MEN IN ADJUSTMENTS

American Legion Has Definite Plan for Securing Action in Settlement of Claims—Synod Will Visit Various Cities in Illinois.
There is every indication that the American Legion's campaign for the adjustment of compensation and vocational training claims is bringing the desired results. Recently Director Forbes of the bureau of war risk insurance, issued orders which are resulting in a nation-wide campaign to search out disabled veterans so that whatever is the necessary action may be taken to adjust claims.
In order to gather the desired information and bring about the results in this area, a clean-up squad will start in Illinois at Springfield, August 22, and continue its work until September 1. A clean-up squad will start in Illinois at Springfield, Aug. 22 and continue to Sept. 1. On Sept. 6 the squad will move to Peoria and remain there until Sept. 16. Other dates will be announced later, but it is planned to visit every portion of the state and to keep going until every comrade has had an opportunity to secure adjustment of his claim.
The squad will consist of:
1. A medical examiner from the United States Public Health Service
2. A compensation and claims contact examiner from the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.
3. A representative of the Eighth district office of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.
4. A representative from the Federal Board for Vocational Education who will handle claims for training along the same lines as they have been heretofore by the eligibility squad of the Federal Board.
5. A representative from the Service Department of The American Legion of Illinois.
6. A representative from the Central Department of the American Red Cross.
In addition, the necessary clerical and stenographer assistants will be furnished jointly by The American Legion Posts and the Red Cross chapters in the headquarters cities.
This squad will not have power to make changes in the rate of compensation, but all comrades dissatisfied with their ratings or treatment can secure advice and assistance in securing an early decision at Washington, since this squad will be in direct touch with the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.
The medical examiner will have full power to provide immediate hospitalization and medical treatment.
The claims examiner and his assistants from The Legion and Red Cross will assist in preparing affidavits and can advise the exact procedure necessary to secure adjustment of compensation claims.
The Federal Board representative will assist in appeals for Class Two Training and placement of trainees.
This is our chance, comrades, to fulfill our duty to our wounded and disabled buddies. Upon us falls the work of seeing that every disabled buddy has his chance to present his claim to this squad.
Your post will, upon notice, that the squad will visit in your area, immediately place the above information before every disabled comrade. Proceed at once to secure adequate publicity in every newspaper in every newspaper in your community and follow up each week with additional information on the visit of the clean-up squad.
Co-operate with the Red Cross representative to the end that every disabled veteran is notified of the meeting.

The Story of a Domestic Tragedy In Which Love Finally Wins the Day
"His Greatest Sacrifice"
Featuring William Farnum

The dramatic art as exemplified on the screen by Mr. Farnum has been a joy to all motion picture followers, and, according to advance reports, "His Greatest Sacrifice" is a picture that gives the star an opportunity to lay all of his great screen powers at the feet of the photodramatic public.
The story has to do with the lives of husband and wife, who both have ambitions to gather the applause of the public—she as an opera singer and he as a writer. He feels that his work will redound to the credit of his wife and child, while she is selfish and vain, and seeks only the personal joy and position her voice will bring her. She achieves fame, but loses what she later learns to be the greatest joy—the love of her husband and her child.
Alice Fleming plays the wife and Evelyn Greely the daughter in this William Fox production.

REPORT FAMINE IN RUSSIA IS GROWING WORSE

Claimed 300,000 Children Abandoned by Parents to State's Care

(By The Associated Press)
RIGA, Aug. 6.—The general public in Russia is apparently ignorant of the fact that the question of the release of American prisoners is involved in famine relief as Moscow newspapers received today make no mention of the recent notes of Herbert Hoover and Secretary Hughes.

These newspapers report that famine conditions are growing worse, particularly among children, 300,000 of whom in the Noga district are reported by M. Lunarcharsky, a leader in the soviet relief measures to have been abandoned by their parents to the care of the state.

M. Lunarcharsky is reported to have declared that this action will furnish a better plan for the carrying out of the soviet program of nationalization of children. William D. Haywood is still in Moscow and apparently has changed his mind about returning to America to surrender to the authorities, according to an arrival here who saw Haywood a few days ago.

With the American delegates to the recent congress of the Third Internationale, Haywood expects to assist in the famine relief work, it was said.

GOV. SMALL GOING TO CAPITAL TUESDAY

Announcement Made by Attorneys of Executives' Plans After Conference Held in Chicago.

(By The Associated Press)
Springfield, Ill., Aug. 6.—Former Congressman James M. Graham and George B. Gillespie of counsel for Governor Small returned to Springfield tonight from Chicago where they were in conference today with the governor. Former Governor Joseph W. Pifer who also attended the conference, returned to Bloomington on the same train.

Governor Small, according to plans made today, will return to the capital next Tuesday his attorneys said. Altho he has not attended recent conferences between the governor his counsel and political advisers, Attorney Fink is still associated with the governor's counsel it was said tonight.

Regardless of developments next week the governor, it is said, plans to go to Muncie, Monday for the formal dedication of the Dixie Highway which is practically completed in Illinois.

The governor's counsel tonight refused to discuss Governor Small's future plans regarding the indictments against him for embezzlement and conspiracy to defraud the state treasury.

Sheriff Mester was at the Chicago & Alton station tonight when the Chicago train arrived but explained he was there to meet his wife who was a visitor in Chicago.

WIFE OF MURDERED MAN TALKS TODAY

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The story of a thwarted love was told today by Miss Olivia M. P. Stone, Cincinnati nurse after she had been held without bail on a charge of homicide in connection with the shooting of E. G. Kinkead, former corporation counsel of Cincinnati, near her home in Brooklyn yesterday.

Mrs. Kinkead refused to confirm or deny the statement of a neighbor that three months ago Miss Stone had threatened to kill both her and her husband. Nor would she reply to any statement made by the nurse.

Later, however, she made this statement:

"I want it understood that there is no malice in my heart against the woman.

"That is not the first time she had had trouble with men. I have receipts for money my husband paid her for blackmail.

"I still believe in my husband and that his relations with her were simply that of patient and nurse."

Governors of Georgia and Kentucky Send Congratulations to Illinois

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Gov. T. W. Hardwick of Georgia, and Governor Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky today sent messages to the Dixie Highway association congratulating Illinois on the opening of the highway between Chicago and Danville, which will take place next Friday when a thousand automobiles will be driven into Chicago from downstate cities.

Governor Morrow's message said:

"The completion of this splendid and permanent road should be an inspiration to every state and every city to be benefitted by the completion of the Great American highway connecting the north and south—the cotton fields and the lakes. Kentucky felicitates Illinois on her success, and pledges to her and her highway association every effort possible to keep step with the road progress of her sister state."

Governor Hardwick's message said:

"Permit me to extend my felicitations on this great accomplishment and of my cordial appreciation of the achievement, which will mean so much when the Dixie Highway is finally up to the high standard which is the ideal aim of your organization and which your organization has done so much to perform."

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The search for Warren C. Spurgin, missing president of the defunct Michigan Avenue Trust company, sought in connection with a $1,000,000 shortage in the bank's accounts, was directed from Mexico to Porto Rico today following the receipt of a message from the police of San Juan asking for a description of the banker.

Meanwhile a federal warrant for Spurgin, charging violation of the prohibition statutes was issued by United States Commissioner Glass, based on discovery of liquor valued at more than $10,000 in Spurgin's private vault in the bank.

SUSPECT FOUL PLAY SO EXHUME BODIES

(By The Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The exhumation of a fourth body and the apparently mysterious disappearance of $15,000 marked the investigation today of the deaths of John Demmer and Fred Kolze and wife by poison. Mrs. Demmer, who was questioned regarding the deaths, was released on bonds yesterday.

Acting with Coroner Hoff of DuPage county, Coroner Hoffman today exhumed the body of Mrs. Lena Kolze from a grave in St. Joseph cemetery, just over the DuPage county line at Bensenville.

The vital organs were removed and brought to Chicago for analysis.

"The appearance of the body indicated Mrs. Kolze died while in good health and probably from an unnatural cause," said Coroner Hoffman.

The coroner also told of an interview with Mrs. Elizabeth Marwood of Bensenville, mother of Mrs. Fred Kolze who said she gave her daughter $15,000 which has never been accounted for since her death.

The annual reunion of the Martin family will be held at Nichols park this afternoon. The members will go to the park shortly after noon with dinner baskets for two meals. The family have its first reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson, who now have their residence on South East street. Present officers of the organization are C. W. Martin, president, and Miss May Martin of Literberry, secretary.

PROGRAMS OUT FOR
BREEDERS' FAIR

Premium Catalog Has Ninety-Six Pages—Copies to be Distributed This Week.

Twenty-five hundred copies of the program for the Morgan County Breeders' fair are to be distributed through the county this week. The program, which is just off the press, is a book of ninety-six pages, and gives complete lists of premiums and other valuable information for those who are interested in the event. Prizes amounting to four thousand dollars are offered.

In a preliminary announcement which precedes the premium lists, the booklet explains the plan which is to be followed in determining the exact amount of the prizes offered. The statement follows:

"The Morgan County Fair is for Morgan County people. Its entries are in every case limited to Morgan county residents or land owners. As the Fair Association is incorporated as a business not for pecuniary profit, and as provisions were made in the Constitution and By-Laws, so that no Board of Directors could without an affirmative vote in writing of two thirds of the members of the Association, levy assessments upon the members to pay any indebtedness that may occur; and in order to protect the Association and Board of Directors we insert the following paragraph:

"The premium amounts offered are as high as our prospective finances would allow. As our Association allows no assessments on its members to make up deficiencies and as our Association has not tangible property for collateral securities, should there appear that there would be a deficiency, these premiums will be lowered, a percent necessary to allow no deficiency. The same percent will be deducted from each hand every premium offered by the Association."

HARD TO ARRANGE GAMES FOR 'BLACK SOX'

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Aug. 6.—Seven former members of the Chicago American League Baseball team acquitted of charges that they took part in a gamblers' conspiracy to throw the 1919 world series games were refused permission to play against the "Chairmakers" of the Lake Shore League. It was announced today. It was said that an exhibition game had been sought here for the former White Sox.

"We realize that a game between the Chairmakers and the 'Black Sox' would be a big financial drawing card here," said an announcement issued by one of the directors of the club, "but we refused to sign for such a game. As far as the principles of law are concerned the indicted players are innocent, but they are still under the shadow of shame as far as the principles of organized baseball are concerned.

How Long Will a Ray Battery Last?

In the first place, the RAY is guaranteed unconditionally for two years. Before the announcement of the RAY, two years was considered a fair average for the life of any battery. But the RAY is GUARANTEED for that long, with a guarantee of the broadest kind—one that compels the factory to give you a new battery if your present one fails to function properly within two years of the date you purchase it from our service station.

If this battery is so superior that the factory can guarantee it for two years it is a sure thing that, with any kind of care, it will last much longer. As a matter of fact, there are RAY Batteries now in service that have functioned continually and without any trouble for four years.

Look at the prices, consider that, for two years, you are protected by an unconditional guarantee and that a RAY would probably last twice that long and then ask yourself if there is any other battery on the market which offers you such a safe and sure investment.

Let us put a RAY BATTERY in your car—all types in stock for all cars. We give prompt battery service on all makes of batteries—free inspection and water.

MADE AUTOMOBILE JOURNEY TO COAST

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hall Had Interesting Tourist Experience
Letter from Mr. Hall Gives Details.

Early in the summer Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hall and son started overland for Oakland, Cal.
They spent several weeks on the journey and are now pleasantly located in Oakland.

Mr. Hall in a letter to his long time friend, Dr. R. R. Buck-thorpe, writes in an interesting vein of the trip and tells of various unusual happenings along the route. Some idea of the number of people who now travel overland

in cars can be gained from Mr.
Hall's statement that in the park
at Denver where he and his family camped for several nights that more than 1,000 tourists were living in tents. Mr. Hall's description of his long journey is given herewith:

Oakland, Calif., July 18, 1921.
Dr. R. R. Buckthorpe,
Jacksonville, Ill.

Friend Bob:
I have about gotten rested up from our trip and just a few lines to let you know we are still in the land of living. We had a very fine trip and had a great many experiences which I shall never forget and also saw such fine scenery that I never imagined could be.

We started out to take the southern route and got down below Hutchinson, Kansas and met some parties who had just come thru that way and they told us it would be impossible to get thru that way for at least three weeks and we took up north and got as far as Salina, Kansas, where we had to lay up for five days on account of rain and mud and we met a party by the name of Mason who was from Wichita, Kansas and were also going the southern route and had to change the same as we did and we traveled with them to Salt Lake City, where they had to lay up for repairs as their car was in bad shape from the terrible roads which we had.

They had a large 7-passenger Cadillac car, his wife and four small children and were not loaded as we were but our old buss just did fine, we broke three springs, had four punctures and one blowout. That was the extent of our trouble outside of losing our gasoline tank and I chained it on and we pulled about eight miles to a blacksmith shop where between the blacksmith and myself we put on new bands and I am betting big odds that I shall never lose it again.

Camped In Denver Park

Poor old Russell did not get to kill a Jack on the way out but we saw lots of them, also saw some badgers and coyotes, but did not take a shot at them as they are very strict on hunters. Our here, especially tourists so we did not take any chances with the law. We spent about two days in Denver, Colo., and I was very much disappointed with it as a business city, very slow, most miserably dirty. The park where we camped in Denver, "Overland park" had from 1,000 to 1200 tents pitched when we were there and people from all parts of the world. When we left Denver we started to Fort Collins and I never saw the roads were fine but we went about thirty miles and ran into a cloudburst and got washed off a concrete bridge, had to turn and come back to Boulder, where we stayed a couple of days, a very pretty place and lots of fine scenery. We finally got started again and went to Fort Collins, (The Siding) 8550 feet above the sea level our first high climb and pulled into Laramie, Wyoming where we camped for the night and I never saw the roads were fine but in my life as it did that night and it turned cold and thought it would surely snow but we got by without any.

The next day we went thru a deserted mining town this side of Rawlins, Wyoming and pulled on to Wamsutter and camped on the prairie, pulled sage brush for a mattress and the next day we drove to Lyman where it was very cold and we rented a cottage of two rooms and stayed there for the night and on Sunday we pulled into Salt Lake City where we had to give up our traveling companions and make the rest of our trip alone.

Visited Volcano Pool.

We did not get out of Salt Lake until about noon and drove to a place called "Fish Springs" on the Salt desert where we staid for the night and next morning we all went out to old "Volcano pool" and took the first real good bath we had since leaving home. This pool is about 60 feet in diameter and they have sounded it to a depth of 400 feet and never struck bottom and the water is so warm you cannot get into it only by degrees and you can only swim across it about three times until you will become exhausted.

About 100 feet from this pool is one of about one-half the size and the water there is so hot you can boil eggs in it, impossible to put your hand in this water. It is so hot. Where we took our bath was from the first pool in a tent which had been pitched there for that purpose into which they had put a wooden bath tub and piped the water into it. Say, Bob, if I had that pool in Jacksonville I would rather have it than one-half of the town as it would make a man so rich that "John D. R." would be trying to get acquainted with you.

Well we did not find anything but the roughest and wildest country from there on until we stopped at a ranch house called
"The Willows."

Overtaken by Sand Storm.

When we pulled up there it was a beautiful place on top of a knoll and no one home, but we just hung around until about 6 a. m.
when a young couple drove up.
The young lady had on her regular biking suit with trousers and high boots and the other party who I took to be her husband had on the regular jumper and overalls and a big straw hat. I went out to the horse lot with Russell and I asked if we could stay all night and he said see the lady as she was the boss, and when we turned to look up the lady "Toots" said that's no man and I said how do you know and he said I saw her hair pushed up in the top of her hat, and sure enough it was two young ladies who ran the ranch one being a student from the University here at Perkely and the other who was the boss had taken up the claim and was living there and had the student from the University here working for her but we got to stay all right and enjoyed it very much. The next night we spent at another ranch house called the "Alpin Ranch," but before we got there we went thru our first sand storm and say-it surely gives us our peck of dirt all in one afternoon and we won't have to eat any more dirt for the rest of our lives.

Indians In camp

Just outside of the ranch we camped the first Indians which we had met in camp. Saw lots of them back in cities and towns but none camping before, so after dinner the boys and I walked over and visited the Indians. We could not get much out of them but it was sure a sight to see how they live, just as near to nature as it is possible. Well, we drove into Reno the next day and from there on thru the Sierra Nevada's. We saw real "highways" and the most beautiful scenery I ever expect to see, especially up around Lake Crater and the timber is the prettiest I ever had the privilege to see. We camped the last night at 'Sacramento' and it was a beautiful park and so full of tents we had to take up part of the driveway.

Met an Acquaintance

That evening a young man said to me how near did you come from Springfield, Ill. and I said 34 miles and looked to see who was talking and I saw Newt Craven. He did not know me and I had quite a long talk with him before I told him who I was and then I could hardly get away from him. Well we pulled in here on Monday morning and I called up the office where Harold works before we got into the city and his stenographer answered and said
"Mr. Hall" was not in at present and I wanted to know if it was his bad as he was expecting a call from me. So I told her I would call again and we drove up to about four blocks of Broadway and I called again and he was just coming in from lunch and the way those girls in the office sail-I had a caution and he was not long getting down to where we were. We had a nice 6 room house with sun parlor all modern and are now getting our things in shape to go to living again. We were over to San Francisco Sunday week but I don't like it at all as compared to Oakland. Business is good here and all seem to be busy. We are all living on fruit and it seems so cheap to us. Berries, straw, Logan and black are selling at from 10 to 15c box, cherries 10c pound, plums 6 pounds 25c, apricots 3c and I think Toots can eat his weight in cherries and apricots.

Harold is having his first vacation he has had since he came here. Russell and I are a neighbor boy by the name of Charles Clarke have gone to Monterey, about 130 miles south of here for the week. They left this morning in the car and are going to camp.
The weather is simply ideal I just stepped out and looked at the thermometer as it is 62 degrees and it is 3 p. m., so you see we don't have to sweat ourselves to death.

Why worry along with a leaky radiator? It doesn't pay. WE MAKE THEM as good as new with our patent core system. Price very reasonable. BRADY BROS.

HEALTH CLOWN IS ON
CHAUTAUQUA BILL

Well Known "Rocco" Will Appear on Red Cross Day, August 19.

Any children who have ever seen the famous Red Cross health clown, "Rocco," will be glad to learn that he is to be at the Jacksonville chautauqua on Red Cross Day, August 19. "Roco" has appeared at many great gatherings during the last few years, and has always proved to be an attraction of the highest order. He mingles with the crowds, and delights both adults and children while imparting valuable lessons in right food and health habits. His "Magic Basket" is always full of wonders for the mystification of those about him.

In private life, "Roco" is Captain C. R. Myers who was a member of the American expeditionary forces in France. He is an athlete with many records to his name, and has a chest expansion of nearly twelve inches. During the war he was the champion middle weight boxer of his division.

"Roco" is also listed as one of the attractions at the Illinois State Fair this year.

MANY CASES NEED CORONER'S INQUIRY

Provisions of the Law Called to Attention of Officers

Coroner Rose recently received from the state department of health a statement with reference to cases which should properly be given the attention of coroners. Similar letters were sent to all coroners throughout the state. Some of the matters to which attention is called by the department are as follows:

In checking up the certificate files of the department of public health, we find a large number of death certificates from the various counties of the state showing causes of death, which under the law constitute them coroners' cases, but the certificates are filed as in ordinary cases of death, and as legal records for use in proving pension claims, collecting insurance, or for any other legal purposes, the certificates are practically worthless.

Many certificates in our files show death was caused by "violence, casualty or undue means," which under the law constitutes each case one for a coroner's inquest, but the certificates are not only made on the "medical" form of certificate, but are signed by a physician, which course does not meet the requirements of the law. See section 10, chapter 31, Hurd's Statute.

The coroner has no legal right to delegate a physician to sign a death certificate as "coroner's physician" even though such physician may have acted on the coroner's jury.

The coroner is to be fully satisfied in all cases, as to whether or not there is "reason to believe" that death was due to "violence, casualty or any undue means." He may, and should advise with other persons, but must satisfy himself as to whether or not an inquest is necessary.

Coroners should keep accurate records in "proper record books" to be supplied "at the expense of the county"; and care should be taken to see that all evidence introduced at the inquest is accurately entered in such record book. See section 18 and 19 of Coroner's Act—Hurd's Statute, 1916, chapter 31.

Such records are often required for pension, insurance purposes, damages, to fix criminal liability, etc., and should never be neglected.

At the inquest the coroner should, if possible, determine whether the death was accidental, suicidal, or homicidal and so state on the certificate; and in all cases of death from industrial accidents, should state whether accident occurred on railway, in mine, quarry, in mill, etc.

Section 10, chapter 31, of Hurd's Statute, requires that in all cases where death is the result, or is supposed to be the result of "violence, casualty, or any undue means," the coroner must hold an inquest; and in all cases the coroner must himself make the certificate of death is legal. He cannot authorize any other person to make such a certificate of death.

It is often quite as important that a record be made immediately showing non-criminality, as criminality. In all cases of death from abortion or miscarriage it is to be presumed that the death has been the result of "undue means" until the contrary has been shown. In all such cases, therefore, a coroner's inquest is required.

Death is the result of "violence, casualty or undue means" whenever such injury is the primary cause, even though the victim may have lived and been under the care of a physician for hours, weeks or even years after the injury. A physician's certificate of death in such a case is not within the law.

The law does not make an exception in the case of elderly people. If a fracture of the hip joint, for example, seems to be a factor in producing death, a practitioner of medicine should enter the case to the coroner for official determination.

Cases referable to the coroner: Abortion, whether accidental or otherwise; accidents, whether resulting in immediate death or contributory to death as primary cause; anesthesia, while under anesthetic; alcoholism, especially acute alcoholism; asphyxiation, from any cause excepting possible asphyxia neonatorum; burns or scalds; choking; accidental or otherwise; convulsions, in adults without qualification; crushing, of any kind; cutting of any kind; cyclone; drowning; accidental or otherwise; electrocution or electrical shock; elevator accidents; explosions; exposure; fire; firearms; freezing; falls; heat prostration; homicide, murder, manslaughter; hydrophobia; rabies; infanticide; injuries of any kind; lightning, mine disaster; murder; manslaughter; poisoning, whether accidental or otherwise; run over; railroad accident; shooting, whether accidental or otherwise; suffocation, of infant by over-laying; sunstroke; suicide; struck, by falling object; septicaemia, from any wound; sudden death. * (see footnote); street car accident; tetanus; lockjaw; tornado; unknown cause.

Any other cause of death which may be classified as violence, casualty or undue means.

*Any sudden death from such causes as apoplexy or heart disease need not be referred to the coroner when the victim recently and prior to the attack causing death has been under the care of a licensed physician and the attending physician has full knowledge of the patient's condition, provided, of course, that no suspicion of violence, casualty or undue means, exists. The physician in any such case should exercise extreme care to ascertain that no other cause which would make the case referable to the coroner, has contributed to his patient's death.

SWEET CLOVER

"How sweet the clover smells today!"
The long line of somber carriages
Creeps down the lane between the blossoming meadows.

"How sweet the clover smells!"
My cousin it was who made the remark,
Suspending her grief for the loss of her mother
Long enough to mark a habit of Nature
That otherwise might have escaped her.

That was some forty years ago.
Now, a whiff of clover every time
Fills my mind with that event—
My dear aunt's face, serene and pallid;
My cousin's woe, which she was old enough
To indulge, tho I was not;
It all comes back in the breath of the clover.

When my hour comes to go her way,
Let it be, O Fates, in clover time;
So that years-long its fragrance
May recall to friends my verses;
Let them say with understanding,
Tho no word of me be spoken:
"How sweet the clover smells today!"

—JOHN KEARNS.

MILITARY FUNERAL AT WHITE HALL TODAY

American Legion to Be in Charge of Funeral of Wagoner James M. Lyons Who Died in France.

White Hall, Aug. 5.—The remains of Wagoner James M. Lyons arrived Friday, escorted by Private Lane, and were met at Roodhouse at 1:45 a. m. on the belated Chicago & Alton Hummer. They were taken to the Lyons' home on East Bridgeport street, where they will remain until the hour of the funeral at 9 a. m. Sunday. At that hour services will be held in All Saints Catholic church by Father Clancy, and the burial in the White Hall cemetery will follow. The funeral will be under the auspices of the White Hall post of the American Legion.

Lyons' death was the first among Greene county veterans of the World War. He was a volunteer soldier, enlisting May 27th, 1917, at Columbus, Ohio, and was immediately placed in training at Fort Bliss, Texas, until August, when he went to France with Supply Company, Fifth Field Artillery, as a private of the first class, afterwards being made a wagoner. On his second time up to the front he received wounds that were fatal, his death occurring March 9th, 1918. The action in which he received his fatal wounds occurred in Toul Sector, France, near Ansaerville. The deceased was just nearing his 31st birthday when his death occurred, as his anniversary would have come four days later. He was born at White Hall, March 13th, 1886, son of Michael and Mary Lyons. Coincident with the death of this soldier, the father passed away on March 9th one year later, and just a week following the death of the father the mother gave up her earthly cares, March 18th, 1919. The Lyons' family is one of the beloved families of the community. The home on East Bridgeport is maintained by the three surviving sons, William, Harry and Charles, where the latchstring always hangs out to the passer.

James Lyons was a brave soldier. This is evidenced by numerous papers—that adorn the walls in frames in the Lyons home. One is signed by Woodrow Wilson, one by Raymond Poincaré, another by James J. Pershing, and letters and other forms of communications from immediate associates as to the soldierly qualities of the departed are just as consoling and as highly prized in the home as are the documents bearing the signatures of some of the world's greatest men. The testimony on behalf of the community will be manifested by the attendance at the funeral, which will bring out practically the entire community.

A chicken fry will be served by the ladies of the Catholic church at Murrayville on Tuesday evening, August 16, 1921. Everybody invited to partake of the sumptuous repast.

GREENE COUNTY FARM BUREAU PICNIC AUG. 15

Program of Fourth Annual Picnic of Greene County Farmers Is Announced—Other White Hall News Notes.

White Hall, Aug. 5.—The program of the fourth annual Greene County Farm Bureau Picnic is announced by E. M. Phillips, county farm adviser. It will be held in Gregory Park, White Hall, Saturday, Aug. 15th, and will form the opening feature of the White Hall Chautauqua, the sessions of which begin on the following day with a program of agricultural interest, the speaker being a native from India and his subject "India and the New Agriculture." The program for the farm picnic is as follows:
10:30—Concert—Wyatt's Ladies' Orchestra.
11:00—Call to Order—J. G. Burns, President.
11:15—Announcements and remarks—E. M. Phillips, Business.
11:30—Reading—Miss Henderson.
12:00—Basket Picnic Dinner.
1:30—Concert—Wyatt's Ladies' Orchestra.
1:45—"The Farmer in a Changing World"—Hon. Harold C. Kessinger.
2:30—"Status of Farm Organizations"—Mr. J. C. Sallor, Music.

A program of sports will also be carried out, with horseshoe pitching a feature.
Christian Church Picnic
The congregation of the Christian church gathered on Gregory Park Thursday afternoon. They met on Whiteside Park at 2:30, and were conveyed to Gregory Park in autos where they remained until after 7 p. m. The participants took along basket dinner that formed a very important part of the day's enjoyment from 2:30 until 7:30 p. m. There were about 200 present, and this was one of many such gatherings that have become almost a daily occurrence on Gregory Park this season.

White Hall, Aug. 6.—Conditions in the meat trade are indicated in a letter from Chas. E. Pearce, connected with Armour & Co. at Quincy. He says: "Our business has picked up considerably in the last month, and it begins to look like old times again. While it may be somewhat temporary, yet I think it shows increased confidence of the buying public. Farmers are getting very good prices for their cattle now, and most of the cattle we have in the cooler is corn-fed stuff of much better grade than we ever have had at this time of the year."

A number of White Hall people are planning to attend the Jacksonville Chautauqua on Saturday, Aug. 15th, when the speaker will be Rev. Roy L. Smith of Minneapolis. Rev. Smith spoke at the White Hall Chautauqua two years ago, and his effort at that time is still fresh in the memory of those who heard him, it forming the basis of the go-to-church movement that has been showing some good results in the church-going season.

PONY CART ATTRACTIVE IN THE PARADE
One of the most artistically decorated vehicles in the Mard' Gras parade was the little pony and cart outfit driven by the children of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Templin. In its freshness and charm the cart reminded one of the entries in the annual Festival of Roses, held in California.

Our attention has been called to the absence of our Bulletins of Health the past three weeks, but glance at the busy corner, 323 W. Morgan, and you can see why this seeming neglect.

In reality it is not neglect because all spare moments have been used to provide better and more accommodations for those who must join the "Crusade" for better health and longer life by having diseased parts and foreign bodies removed by the knife.

In fact we are endeavoring to make The New Home Sanitarium not only the safest place, but the only logical place, because it is a real Surgical Hospital, devoted to surgical work only, but the most home-like place to be in when having to go thru the ordeal of a surgical operation.

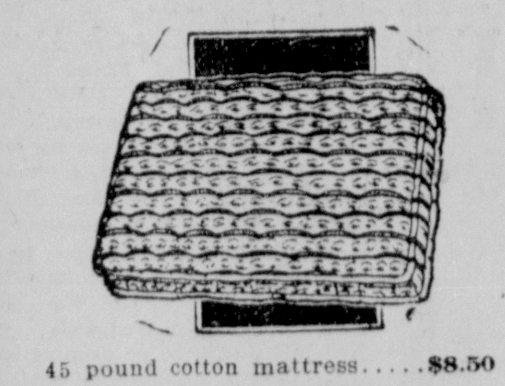

Don't be contented until you see for yourself what a home-like place this really is.

JOHN VASEY IS A COUNTY PIONEER

Well Known Resident of Point Neighborhood Came From England Seventy-three Years Ago—Saturday an Anniversary Date.

August 6, 1848, a wagon load of tired but happy people from the tight little island landed at the home of John Richardson, near where the Point church is now located.

Among them was a little boy, John Vasey who first saw the light of day Feb. 27, 1841 in Scarborough, England and was the son of John and Ann Vasey. The father was industrious and frugal but he had relatives in the new world who had come here for their betterment and they advised him to follow so he acted on their judgment and set out May 5, 1848, for the new world. He didn't take passage on an ocean liner with promenade decks, luxurious dining and recreation halls, tall smoke stacks carrying vapors from furnaces which drove engines propelling the vessel across the deep in a few days.

This vessel was a bark, not full rigged, had ninety passengers and but few children. The breezes of heaven were depended on for propelling power and sometimes they were propitious and sometimes not. They had been out about a month, getting along as best they might, when a violent storm arose and all passengers were hustled below in the thick darkness, the hatches fastened down and the sailors prepared to battle with the elements. Pierced by the winds blew and anxiously the captain gave his orders and strove with all his might, as did the men to keep the craft afloat.

Like prisoners in a dungeon were the passengers and so of necessity. They could not be released. The heart of the fond mother was wrung by the piteous pleas of the children for a morsel of bread and a drink of water but it was impossible. The first day wore away and still the wind blew and the waves gushed over the frail craft and it seemed many times as if she would go down. Sternly the captain gave his orders; faithfully the brave sailors obeyed them. Bare poles were all the ship carried for a sail would soon have been reduced to ribbons in the terrible gale.

The second day came but still the wind roared, the waves dashed and destruction seemed inevitable but the stout hearts of the captain and his crew never gave way nor did his eye quail as he gazed into the storm and prayed for a cessation of the elemental fury. The second day passed and finally the wind died down, the waves were less formidable and finally it was deemed safe to open the hatches and let the prisoners out.

Never did the sun look so good; never did the light of day seem so blessed; never did water taste so refreshing and never did food find persons more eager for it. On the front deck were a lot of coops with fowls and a lot of pens with pigs but all had been fed to the fishes by the terrible storm that washed overboard anything that was loose.

The passengers ate all they wanted, drank all they wanted and offered a prayer of thanksgiving for being saved from a watery grave and all during the rest of the tedious voyage they anxiously watched the clouds till finally they entered the gulf of St. Lawrence and then their troubles were over for while they were yet a good distance from Quebec, their landing place, they would have no more dangerous storms. There were on the ship Mr. Vasey's parents, Mrs. Simpson and her grandchildren, George, Thomas and Frances. Of the whole list Mr. Vasey is the only one living.

Land looked good indeed to them and they had a wonderful ride across Canada. There was a primitive railroad with box cars and boards across for seats. The train went so slowly and stopped so long that often the passengers would get off and hunt for blackberries and other things along the way, the engineer sounding the whistle when it was time to get aboard.

Finally the engine was abandoned and horses were hitched to the train and made about as good time as the engine made.

Cholera in Buffalo
They stopped at Niagara Falls to let the passengers witness the wonderful sight and then on by the lakes to Chicago. At Buffalo cholera had broken out and all was excitement and turmoil. On their boat two persons died with the dread disease and they burned tar and tried all sorts of disinfectants to rid the craft of contagion. They kept on lake boats to Chicago and then took the canal to the Illinois river. The canal boats were small and stuffy but fortunately they didn't have to ride very far on them and glad they were too.

On the river they rode in an old trap of a boat whose steam pipes leaked so badly they had them wrapped with canvas and clay and the steam was hissing out of the holes all the time giving the passengers anything but a pleasant feeling. They felt safer during the great ocean storm for if the boat went down they were so near the land they would probably get ashore with their lives at any rate. There was little racing by that steamboat and it didn't keep in the trade very long either. A leading citizen of the vicinity of the present Point church was John Richardson, brother of Mrs. Simpkins who came over with the Vaseys. He knew of their coming and gave orders to have them brought at once to his house when they landed.

They expected to see quite a city when they landed and were much surprised at the small size of the place. The river was so low they couldn't land on the town side but had to go ashore on the other side and be rowed to the town but they were almost ready to wade across so anxious were they to reach their destination.

Mr. Richardson had asked John Abbott of Naples to look out for the immigrants for there were no telegraphs in those days, and see that they had transportation to their destination. This Mr. Abbott did, starting them off about dusk. He would have had them wait till morning but they were too eager to get to the end of their travels and they pushed ahead, landing with the beginning of Aug. 6, 1848.

Family Connections
Mr. Richardson was Mr. Vasey's grandfather. Mr. Richardson's children were Uncle Peter, Uncle Vincent, Uncle Billy of this land and George who died in England. His daughters were Mrs. James Ranson, Mrs. Ralph Meginson, Mrs. Wm. Coultas and Mrs. John Vasey.

Mr. Vasey's father at once went to work but he had brought some money with him. Joshua Sprague owned a farm of a good size near the Richardson's and sold it to George Bain in 1850 for $25 an acre. Mr. Bain died and in six years Mr. Vasey's father bought the place for sixty dollars an acre which seemed a large price but it was worth it. Uncle Vincent paid only eleven dollars an acre for the homestead farm near the Point.

In 1875 Mr. Vasey went back to England on a visit and while there met Miss Isabel Danby and wisely fell in love with her and next year went over and brought her back with him to travel together the path of life, which they have done for many years, pleasantly and harmoniously. Having no children of their own they took to their hearts and home little Louise Johns, a motherless lass, and reared her tenderly and lovingly. She grew to beautiful womanhood, married Mr. Daggett and was the mother of four children whom she left for the other world when they were small. Mr. and Mrs. Vasey took the little ones to their hearts and home and did for them all parents could do and today they are reaping their reward.

One of the girls married David Brown, a steady, industrious man, and they live within a few feet of Mr. and Mrs. Vasey, carrying on the farm and ready to do the bidding of the old people and minister to their every want and need.

Mr. Vasey is one of the very few pioneers left; persons to whom this land owes so much for what they underwent in early days. They will always be remembered gratefully.

How I Was Wrecking the Lives of My Children

And Suffering Indescribable Tortures Myself Day and Night. A Mother's Terrible Confession.

For some time I had noticed that my two children, a boy of seven and a girl of ten, were becoming highly nervous, irritable and very disobedient—at times even "sassy." I tried various punishments, even whipping, but they kept growing worse. I fought and struggled with the situation. My own nerves were all "on edge"—the least thing put me into a rage. I quarreled and had most awful "fusses" with my husband over nothing as I now look back on them. I was too weak to work or enjoy life, and too nervous and irritable to go anywhere. I was horribly impatient and ugly if I did not get just what I wanted when I wanted it. I often suffered from severe heart palpitation and indigestion. I could not sleep at night; I had an almost constant dull aching pain in the back of my neck and head, and frequently a very disagreeable sense of fullness in the front part of my head. I often had severe pains across my back, which made me think I had kidney trouble. I also had tender spots along the spine, which convinced me that a fall I had had several years ago had caused permanent spinal injury which later proved to be only a case of nerves. I could not begin to describe all the tortures, terrible pains, and great devitalizing weakness which I endured. Nobody, not even my husband, seemed to appreciate or realize my condition, and very few offered any sympathy, which irritated me all the more.

Finally I went to a doctor and told him my story; what awful children I had, and asked his advice as to what to do with them, and whether or not I should send them to a reform school. After studying my case and talking with me and my children to my surprise and disgust he told me I was the cause of my children's condition; that it was all my fault. At this I flew into a rage, but after I had cooled down somewhat, he explained to me the terrible condition of my nerves. He told me a system only manufactured to nerve force, and that I had of life was stored in nerve cells, much like electric energy stored in a storage battery. I said that I was like an electric storage battery had nearly run down, and the car could not move, hardly move. He said my own highly nervous condition had been a constant drain on the nerve force of my children, and that the constant nervous strain to which I had subjected them had wrecked their highly sensitive nerves.

PRESIDENT V. R. RILEY REPORTS TO ROTARIANS

Account of International Rotarian Convention at Edinburgh Concluded From Saturday's Journal.

As President Soredecon's speech is to be printed in the Rotarian of this month, I shall make no mention of it here except to give some thoughts presented as to the apparent danger of Rotary in the future, the first mentioned was the danger that follows in the wake of signal success, the danger of self complacency. We must not become satisfied with the mere pointing with pride to the rapid growth and achievements of the past. It cannot like the Ford car, run on its reputation alone. Rotary's strength lies in the sincerity of purpose of its members. It will lose its influence and its effectiveness as it ceases to be a guiding principle, and a vitalizing force in the lives of men. A second danger pointed out is allowing our organization to be used by various agencies for the furtherance of their own ends. Rotary Clubs and the International association are being besieged constantly by various and sundry movements and agencies, many of which are worthy, in order to enlist the use of our effective machinery on behalf of their own pet ideas and schemes. Rotary recognizes the fact that we are a part of a social order, and that as such we owe certain duties to society, and to the community in which we live. Rotary seeks to encourage constructive citizenship by the discussion of vital economic and social problems, by the development of latent qualities of leadership in men, and by fostering those habits of mind and heart which express themselves in a disposition to serve the community and the nation for the best interest of all. Rotary recognizes that there are inherent in every man certain finer sensibilities and nobler impulses of the heart, which are awaiting a fuller expression in his life; and further more, that men are happier when they are giving free expression to these finer qualities of their natures. Rotary is bringing home to the business men of the world an inspiring truth, it is placing a new valuation upon a man's vocation, it is telling men there is a dignity in their vocations, no matter what that vocation may be, which may be realized only as man is able to give expression to his highest self thru the ordinary channels of business, it is reminding men that our system of business springs out of the necessity of serving society.

International Character.
Rotary is not primarily a peace society but it is by reason of its international character, and by reason of its principles of friendship, and service, that we are challenged in these trying days to perform a service which is larger than the community and larger than the nation, a service to the entire world.

Paul Harris, the founder of Rotary, said in his message, "If the spirit of Rotary can bridge the chasm that lies between the freedom of the West and the conservatism of the East, we need have little fear as to its adaptability to other conditions to be met with elsewhere."

In regard to constitution and by-laws, it seemed the convention was unable to accept the draft of the constitution embodying the changes proposed by the Atlantic City Convention of 1920; on account of this fact, the Chairman of this Committee, Donald McRae moved that for the consideration of the constitution and bylaws during the coming year a larger and more representative body was desirable, and that the bylaws be so amended that the Committee consist of a Chairman and thirty members, one member in each district to be chosen by the majority vote of the club presidents, two by the executive of the British Association, three and the Chairman by the President and the International Association, the committee to meet in Chicago on a day early in November to prepare a draft to be submitted to the 1922 Convention. This motion prevailed.

Rotary Education.
Rotary education was a subject much discussed, and an apparent need of some method for education of Rotarians as to Rotary, developed. An examination of the growth of the organization disclosed some very startling figures; more than 500 clubs were less than three years old; more than 400 were less than two years old, and over 200 were less than one year old; to transmit a proper conception of the ideals and principles upon which the organization was established, to the members of all these clubs is a serious problem; the crying need of Rotary, we were told is not to increase the number of clubs 32 per cent each year, which has been the average for each of the three years just passed, but rather to develop in the present members, and all those who may be accepted as members in the future, a complete understanding of the teachings of Rotary. The most vital thing in the organization today is the true spirit of Rotary to the highest possible degree with the membership of the present existing clubs and to encourage this feature, a "Bureau of Education" was recommended, in the conclusion of this subject the Committee appealed to all Rotarians for the most earnest consideration of this subject.

After looking over note taken, and portions of addressed copied and printed, we find it impossible to give, in a short time, even the most important statements of so many offerings; there were reports of all manner of activities engaged in, from the great efforts of European Clubs, in caring for orphans and war widows, the acceptance of the responsibility of looking after boys for a period of ten years, and guaranteeing them an opportunity of an education, to the activities of other clubs in establishing parks, playgrounds, athletic fields, dental clinics, backing Boy Scout movements, summer camps, assistance for crippled children even to the extent of the State of Ohio caring for 12,000 of such children. There were social activities to such an extent that one Rotarian inquired when the delegates were going to sleep, and the reply came back that "you can do that at home; it's useless to come three or four thousand miles to sleep." Some of the social activities seemed to the speaker to be superfluous; the President's ball, for instance; as you know President Snedecor has only one leg; however, there were enough others fully equipped to make the occasion quite a success.

Foreign Extension
Foreign extension was a subject fully discussed. President Gorce, of Paris, Dr. Kennedy of Calcutta, and representatives of the Rotary movement in Madrid and Cuba, were heard with interest. The English, especially, objected to being classified as foreign, and asked that the expression be eliminated from Rotary, and one bold speaker asked when we were going to have the courage to bring in Germany. He decried, he said, as much as any one the militarism which dominated the thought and policy of Germany, but he was perfectly satisfied that until they got all the nations that were at enmity together, in the spirit of Rotary, they had only partially done work, and he commended that thought to the foreign extension committee.

Sir Hary Lauder declared half the world is on the wrong scent in the pursuit of happiness; they think it consists in having and getting, and being served by others, whereas it DOES consist in GIVING and SERVING others.

I think perhaps the sentiment of the convention was better expressed by J. W. Pratt, member of the British Parliament than of that individual speaker. He believes that Rotarians would be willing an capable missionaries of the new spirit, turning from the wrongs and divisions and strife of the past, and thinking of the world and its future, in terms of unity and harmony. Just as in the great republic of the West (referring to the U. S.) they had many states but only one flag, so, though there were many nations and governments there was only one world, and though independent, they were all united by a still greater was interdependence.

Anglo-American Peace.

It is a great fact, he stated, that the two proudest and most high tempered peoples of earth have not crossed swords for a hundred years. There is one frontier (referring to the U. S. and Canada) of the earth's surface, thousands of miles in length, unarmored and unguarded; he did not plead for friendship between the U. S. and Great Britain, said there was no need for that, that friendship was one of the greatest facts in the history of the world. When the people of Great Britain and the U. S. cease to be friends, they will cease to be Christians and cease to be men, and no one can imagine that the friendship, sealed with so much precious blood on both sides, between France and Great Britain, could ever be broken. They are asking other nations to join them, not as followers but as brothers, and as comrades on the highway leading to better times and a better understanding among all the nations of mankind.

After the election of officers, the new President, Crawford McCulloch, of Fort William, Ontario, in a striking speech said he accepted the office with trepidation, and considered it the highest honor he could imagine. Rotary could only be judged by the deeds she did, rather than the creeds she recited; he was aware of the political boundaries, and while patriotic, he felt that he had been chosen the director of a world-wide organization.

Rockford Woman Couldn't Bear the Weight of Bed Clothes—Tanlac Again Proves Merit

Characteristic of the statements which have made Tanlac a household word throughout the entire continent is that of Mrs. L. A. Bush, 417 West St., Rockford, Ill., who, on relating her remarkable experience, said recently:

"I don't believe anybody ever did for eight years. There were times when my arms hurt me so bad I would break down and cry. My elbows were so stiff I couldn't use my arms at times. Why, I couldn't even lift a dish off the table. My whole body was sore to the touch and sometimes I could not bear the weight of the bed clothes pressing on me."

"My stomach was in awful condition, too, and everything I ate soured and formed gas that would rise in my throat and choke me. I had tried so many things without getting relief I was about ready to give up but, lucky for me, I heard so many people talking about Tanlac."

"I gave it a trial. I am like a different person now, haven't a pain or an ache and feel as well and strong as I ever did in my life. I am as happy as can be and it's all due to this wonderful medicine. If Tanlac could help me I know it can help anybody, and there is no use for people to suffer when all they have to do is to get Tanlac and be strong and well."

Tanlac is sold in Jacksonville by Shreve's Drug Store and by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

Daily Market Report

WHEAT MARKET

STEADY SATURDAY

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Canadian rust and hail reports coupled with evening up operations for over Sunday steadied the wheat market today but there were no such influences at work on behalf of either corn or oats. Wheat recorded gains of 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, corn finished net unchanged to 1/4 lower and oats from 1/4 to 1/2 lower to 1 1/2 higher. In provisions lard and ribs were strong but there was no trade in pork.

Wheat trade was light but the undertone was steadier thruout the short session.
Canadian news came in early and was the predominant influence thruout. Winnipeg advices said there had been considerable damage to wheat in Western Canada by heavy rains and hail followed by decided drops in temperature and fear of frost. Winnipeg also reported urgent demands for cash wheat with the supply short. Because of the break in prices domestic country offerings fell off but they still exceeded the normal for the season. Export demand was reported slow but one dispatch from New York said a way had been found to discount German 90 day bills and some traders thought this meant that Germany would come into the market.

Corn sold at a new low on the crop for September and the market was weak generally. Crop reports continued to predict big fields.
September oats also made a new low for the crop.

Higher hogs and buying by packers caused the rally in provisions after an easy opening.

The good old U. S. Dollar is the only money in the world today that is worth its face everywhere. For a long time, due to war conditions, the U. S. Dollar did not purchase as much as in the "God Old Days." But that is all changed now. At the SHANKEN STORES the U. S. Dollar will purchase more of genuine quality today, and every day, than at any time during the last ten years. If you think this latter assertion too strong, and that it is impossible for us to live up to it, just take the time any day to pay us a visit. Examine our stock thoroughly and carefully, note its high quality and style, learn our prices and compare with those published anywhere in Illinois. We cheerfully will abide the result. We are here to stay, to stay we must please. Are we doing it? If so, tell others. If not, tell us.

End of the Season "U. S. Dollar Sale" Monday and Tuesday—Just Notice That A U. S. Dollar Will Buy
